

LOWRY RESTAURANT MORAIRA MARCH 2012

Lowry is on the Calpe road heading out of Moraira on the left before the big Pepe supermarket. Its former incarnation was as an Irish pub, which it still looks like inside, with lots of dark wood and a big curved wall, making for an interesting layout of tables. The new owners previously ran the Olive Tree restaurant. The food was beautifully cooked and presented, service was quietly efficient and every person I asked was happy to very happy with their meal. Our group paid 20 euros for three courses with half a bottle of wine. Parking was tricky. The only criticisms were the VERY hard seats, and some people did not like the fact that it looks like a pub not a restaurant.
